

Buckinghamshire Skills Hub Provider Access Legislation (PAL) Toolkit

The Provider Access Legislation (PAL) came into force in January 2023. This booklet explains how schools must comply with PAL. Compliance for colleges isn't mandatory but encouraged.

We offer examples of best practice, resources to help plan an approach to successfully deliver PAL, and videos of stakeholders explaining the importance to young people of knowing about all pathways available to them, thereby helping them make fully informed decisions about their next steps.

Promoting all Pathways

It is vital at key transition points that young people and their parents / carers are supported to develop knowledge of all available routes open to them. PAL is a key mechanism to help students understand and take up wider technical education options now available, such as T Levels.

Watch this film to find out about why and how you should be promoting all pathways. Hear how other schools, special schools and colleges are sharing essential messaging around options and pathways and addressing the misconceptions.

Provider Access Legislation

The Provider Access Legislation (PAL) was introduced in January 2023. It is a key mechanism to further help learners understand and take-up not just apprenticeships, but wider technical education options such as T-Levels and Higher Technical Qualifications.

The updated PAL specifies schools must provide at least six encounters for all their students:

Two encounters for pupils during the 'first key phase' (year 8 or 9) that are mandatory for all pupils to attend.

Two encounters for pupils during the 'second key phase' (year 10 or 11) that are mandatory for all pupils to attend.

Two encounters for pupils during the 'third key phase' (year 12 or 13) that are mandatory for the school to put on but optional for pupils to attend.

In the context of the PAL, a provider is an organisation that offers approved technical education qualifications or their representative, for example an FE college, institute of technology or training provider.

A provider, to whom access is given, must deliver an encounter that includes the following:

Information about the provider and the approved technical education qualifications or apprenticeships that the provider offers.

Information about the careers to which those technical education qualifications or apprenticeships might lead.

A description of what learning or training with the provider is like.

Responses to questions from the pupils about the provider or approved technical education qualifications and apprenticeships.

The Provider Access Legislation (PAL) in SEND Settings

How should schools and providers deliver and record encounters for those with future pathways that are limited? This could be due to the nature of their specific learning needs and/or physical ability.

All learners should have the same opportunities for meaningful provider encounters and the majority of pupils with SEND, including those with high levels of needs, can access fulfilling jobs and careers with the right preparation and support.

For those with specific needs or abilities where they are highly likely to proceed into adult social care - it is recognised that additional flexibility in how these encounters are delivered may be required. They should have access to information about appropriate education and training options.

Schools should involve parents/carers, the Special Educational Needs Coordinator (SENCO) and other relevant staff to tailor each provider encounter to ensure they are realistic and a meaningful experience for the learner.

Schools must cooperate with local authorities, who have an important role to play through their responsibilities for SEND support services, education, health and care plans and the promotion of participation in education and training. Statutory guidance on the SEND duties is provided in the 0-25 Special Educational Needs and Disability Code of Practice.

My Skill My Future has a list of resources supporting young people with SEND. It contains lessons around employability skills development, employer projects and engagement videos to support young people on their next step.

Making it Meaningful: Benchmark 7

Benchmark 7: Guiding principles

To support a meaningful approach to Benchmark 7, this resource is underpinned by the following guiding principles (Please click on the headings to find out more):

BM7 principle 1: Start early

- Implement a progressive programme that broadens horizons, and scaffolds development of the knowledge and understanding required for students to identify their best next steps, from when students join you.

BM7 principle 3: True advocacy

- Grow your expertise in all career pathways and opportunities for young people.
- Become an expert in the latest vocational and technical opportunities for your young people.

GB7 principle 5: Equity of access to information and understanding

- All pathways for all young people.
- Provide equality of access to information and understanding.

BM7 principle 2: Be informed by trends and success

- Use destination data and LMI to identify any gaps and implement appropriate intervention.
- Use relevant destinations data and LMI to inform continuous improvement.
- Harness employer and alumni voice through multi-Benchmark approaches where young people can be supported to understand learning opportunities through encounters and experiences of the workplace.

BM7 principle 4: Challenge misconception and assumptions head on

- Consider all stakeholders and their knowledge, understanding and potential misconceptions.

Description of Best Practice from DfE (including SEND) and case studies

- To support schools and providers, DfE have compiled a collection of good practice examples and case studies of how the statutory duty applies in practice to enable schools and providers to understand the new legal requirements.
